Jennie Van Becomes Mixed Under Cross-Fire

IN THE ABBOTT RAPE TRIAL

ny as to the Verschy of a Witne ightly Shady-News of the City Courts Gathered Year

The trial of John Abbett on the charge of rape is still in progress in the aperior court. The defense attacks he veracity of tittle Anna Fundamon, he complaining witness, and for this surpose some peculiar witnesses were not upon the stand. Jennie Van, a sard-featured woman with a head of newsy red hair and a raspy voice, said hat she knew the little girl's reputation to be bad. Her reputation for rath and veracity was very bad. Then Prescutor LeGron took the ady in hand her urbanity departed. Madam," inquired he, "What is your ame."

"Jennie Van."

"Jennie Van."

"Jennie Van is my real name in aw. You bet I don't have to take no consumed name."

"Did you ever live in Grand Haven?"

"Yes, sir; I lived there for ten long care."

Further questioning alicited the fact further questioning elicited the fact is there was an individual named of Holmes who lived with Mrs. Van did not live with his wife and family hoarder, as were several other genmen who frequent her Island street address. Mr. Legron asked what id of a place the kept and she reced: "I should think you ought to ow."

Evelyna Lardie was the musical name of another lady who was the pink of propriety until pressed as to her occupation. Then she flew into a whiteheat of passion and said that she cooked at Lou Morrison's Waterloo atreet resort, but that her business there was entirely culinary. This lady seemed to have a wrong conception of the word veracity. When questioned as to the little girl's reputation in that respect she said: "Her reputation for veracity is very bad." "Whom have you heard say so?"

HOW TO GET THE BOUNTY.

A Letter of Importance to Maple Sugar

The following letter from the Hon.

John W. Mason, commissioner of internal revenue, will be noted by all makers of maple sugar who propose to lead among pure medicinal tonics and apply for the United States bounty un-der the McKinley law—a failure to comply will prevent their securing auch bounty:

TREASURY DEPARTMENT,

OFFICE OF THE COMMISSIONER OF INTERNAL REVENUE,

Commissioner of Internal Revenue, Washington, D. C., Feb. 5, 1892.
John Steketee, Esq., Collector Internal Revenue, Grand Rapids, Mich.: Sir—Inquiry has been made at this office for information relative to packing and sampling of maple sugar additional to that given in the regulations which have been recently issued.

My attention has been called to the fact that many of the smaller maple sugar producers are accustomed to manufacture the sugar into small cakes or bricks and also into little circular and cone-shaped cakes and bring them to market in large baskets and even in meal bags and blankets. When the sale is effected the basket or other raceptacle is emptied and taken back by the farmer. The question is mised whether these small producers will be obliged to put up their products in specially prepared packages.

Maple sugar may be put in cakes but the cakes should be inclosed in packages which can be marked as prescribed. The sugar upon which bounty is to be claimed must be in packages containing not less that ten pounds each. Each producer should have the packages as nearly uniform in size as practicable, in order that the ust weight of the sugar may readily be ascertained. The packages put up by each producer must be numbered scribed. The sugar may readily be ascertained. The packages put up by each producer must be numbered scribilly, commencing with No. 1. The packages must be marked with the producer's name and the serial number of the package. The weight of the empty package to be deducted as tare should be plainly marked upon each package before it is filled.

It will not answer the requirements to have the sugar put into baskets, meal bage and baskets. They should be put into packages such as are required for shipment. Sugar should not be brought to the government weigher in bulk and then taken by the producer to be shaped in whatever merchantable form he desires.

In regard to the question of sampling sugar presented in the form of callet,
